

Instant replay... Find some things lying around which you could repurpose into a new game

Think of your favourite type of activity- construction; creative; role-play and so on find some things around your home or garden which haven't been used in a while invent a new game that uses these things

test the game out and see if it works

improve the game and enjoy playing it

share the game with others- make sure you let others see and enjoy your wonderful work to inspire them to use old toys in new ways

When was the last time these things had been used?

Were they successful components to a new game?

What other things could you use?

Who else could you design a game for?

Why not look at these guys for inspiration...
